

I was deeply disturbed to find out that a station I listen to around the US may no longer be available for me to listen to due to the FCC's introduction of Low Power FM. If it is allowed to take priority over current FM translator service, then I will lose a station I love. But more importantly, the station I love (K-LOVE) is listened to by a lot of people and it impacts those who listen to it. I personally only listen to this station because it is so uplifting to me. It helps me to stay positive during the day/night. I think that it also helps people who just find it by tuning in and all of us who listen all the time. Having a station that makes you happy is rare in these days and I'm sure many who tune in notice that this station is different from the rest. I know I would greatly miss it and I know many others would also.